Medicines from the Earth, 2007 15th Annual Symposium on Botanical Medicine June 2-4, Black Mountain, North Carolina

Symposium speakers included special guest Sumita Prajapati, Ayurvedic physician from India. She spends half the year traveling in the US offering lectures and consultations in Ayurveda, and half the year traveling in India performing "seva" by offering their services for free in the villages of the countryside. Her goal is to reestablish the appreciation of Ayurvedic medicine in the home and kitchen before the knowledge is lost to modern pharmaceuticals (which are not usually available in poor country villages). Their complete knowledge of Ayurvedic medicine is apparent in the lectures they presented on kitchen medicine, women's health and pulse diagnosis.

Southwest Conference on Botanical Medicine

The Southwest Conference on Botanical Medicine at SCNMM on April 5 and 6 welcomes Ayurvedic physician (Vaidya) Sumita Prajapati, who is presenting three lectures on Ayurveda, the ancient Indian system of health and healing. Dr. Sumita speaks on Ayurveda for women and balancing the physiology and discusses the use of herbs in the kitchen for treating a variety of complaints including migraine headaches. The vaidya practice in India and is dedicated to preserving the traditional uses of healing herbs in the villages there, before that knowledge is lost as the populace embraces modern pharmaceutical drugs.
